-- The MAILING DATE of this communication appears on the cover sheet with the correspondence address --

Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

- 1) ☒ Responsive to communication(s) filed on 14 March 2007.
- 2a) ☐ This action is FINAL. 2b) ☒ This action is non-final.
- 3) ☐ Since this application is in condition for allowance except for formal matters, prosecution as to the merits is closed in accordance with the practice under Ex parte Quayle, 1935 C.D. 11, 453 O.G. 213.

DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election without traverse of species #2 (Fig.5), claims 1-33 in the reply filed on 3/14/2007 is acknowledged.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 9-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Re claim 9: The Examiner is unclear as to how "the third party acts as a merchant." Is the applicant referring to a merchant bank? Is the credit issuer the same entity as the third party? Clarification is required.

Claim 11 recites the limitation "the credit card association fees" in line 2. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Art Unit: 3692

Claims 10 and 12 are rejected because of their dependency to the rejected claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1, 3-9, 13, 14, 23, 24, 28, 30-31, 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Foster (US Patent No. 6,332,134).

Re claim 1: Foster discloses:

receiving payment instructions electronically from the first party by a third party; determining whether the first party has an existing checking account and credit card account with the third party; ("the present invention includes apparatus for use by a cardholder for conducting a financial transaction between the cardholder and a merchant, wherein the cardholder makes a purchase from the merchant using credit established at a financial institution...combining information about the selected item and the merchant identifier with cardholder information...wherein a request to pay is created, and means for transmitting the request to pay to the financial institution.")-see col. 3 lines 11-23;

carrying out the instructions, the instructions directed at satisfying an obligation to the second party by the first party by debiting directly from the first party's existing checking account or credit card account, or a newly established account;. -col. 4 lines 54 to col. 5;

and integrating financial services in satisfying the obligation of the first party to the second party-("cardholder makes a purchase form a merchant using credit established at a financial institution.")see col. 3 lines 1-39; and ("The cardholder establishes an account with the card company to obtain credit which may be used to make financial transactions, such as purchasing goods...")-see col. 5 lines 4-12; and ("the card company may be a credit card company, a bank, a credit union, or other financial institution...")-see col. 4 lines 58-67.

Re claims 3,4: Foster discloses:

wherein the first and second party individually select their preferred method of payments in terms of timeliness of payment-see col. 5 lines 16-63; wherein the electronic transaction occurs via the Internet-see col. 4 lines 36-50;

Art Unit: 3692

Re claim 5: Foster discloses wherein the third party is a bank-see col. 4 lines 54-62;

Re claims 6,7,8: Foster discloses wherein the first party establishes a relationship with the third party, by providing the third party information regarding a preexisting account with a separate institution used by the first party; wherein the separate institution accepts an electronic debit; wherein the third party debits the preexisting account via Automated Clearing House (ACH) debit.-see col. 10 lines 24-32.

Re claim 9: Foster discloses wherein the first party makes payment into an account by using a credit card and the third party acts as a merchant.-see col. 12 to col. 13 line 4.

Re claim 13, 14: Foster discloses wherein the first party establishes a line of credit with the third party.-see cols 3 and 5; wherein the third party has experience with the first part and is willing to assume a risk.-see col. 2 lines 56-65 (validation of parties involved in transaction) and col. 5 (establishment of account and registration of cardholder); cols. 7-8 (CardFort System); and col. 4 lines 54-67.

Re claim 23, 24: Foster discloses wherein the financial services includes account information protection; and wherein the first and second party do not have access to the other party's account information.-see col. 2 lines 26-39.

Re claims 28, 30-31, 33: Further a system would have been necessary to perform the method of previously rejected claims 1, 3, 4, and 9 and are therefore rejected using the same art and rationale.

Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 2, 15-18, 25-27, 29, 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Foster in view of Barbara et al. (US PG. Pub. No. 2002/0016769).

Re claim 2: Foster discloses the merchant agreeing to accept payment from the card company via an ACH, which may perform bank to bank transfers and that the transfer of funds may occur in several ways, such as wiring funds directly to the merchant's account. -see col. 7 to col. 9, line 12. Foster does not explicitly disclose wherein the second party receives payment via an automated teller machine. Barbara however, teach ("An embodiment of the present invention enables the recipient 14 to receive a payment from another person, such as customer 10, and to use the payment for shopping 44 or to withdraw the payment in cash 46 at an ATM for a fee.")-see para. 59 and ("access card that is provided...allows the user to withdraw funds from the transaction account...at a self-service financial transaction terminal, such as an automatic teller machine (ATM)")-see para. 19. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Foster to specifically include the recipient to receive payment from a customer and withdraw the payment in cash at an ATM as taught by Barbara in order to accommodate needs of different customers.

Re claims 15, 16, 17: Foster does not specifically disclose wherein the first party and the second party have accounts with the third party further comprising: transferring funds internally between the accounts. Barbara however, teaches a financial institution which has recipient and customer source accounts; wherein one of the accounts of the second party is a direct deposit account; a credit card account-see figure 1 and related text and pars. 55,56,60. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Foster to specifically include that the customer and recipient have accounts with the third party (financial institution); wherein the recipient's accounts can be a deposit account or a credit card account as taught by Barbara in order to facilitate the making of payments over the Internet.

Re claim 18: Foster does not specifically disclose wherein the financial services includes an overdraft protection.

Barbara however, teaches overdraft protection-see para. 72. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Foster to specifically include a financial service providing offering overdraft protection as taught by Barbara in order to prevent the consumer from having to pay overdraft charges incurred when the balance of an account becomes negative.

Re claims 25-27: Foster does not explicitly disclose placing a payment to the second party into a holding account wherein the second party is notified of the payment via email; wherein the second party is provided with an access code to retrieve funds from an ATM. Barbara however, teaches a transaction account to hold money designated for a recipient, wherein the second party is notified via email; and wherein the recipient is provided an access card number-see pars. 18-20; 57; 58-68. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Foster to explicitly include a transaction account for funds designated for a recipient, email notification to the recipient that funds are available, and the recipient provided with an access card number in order to retrieve funds from an ATM as taught by Barbara in order to provide a method for on-line payments which utilizes a transaction account as a hub and allows the funds to flow easily from one account to another and enables easy access of funds for both the customer and recipient.

Re claims 29 and 32: Further a system would have been necessary to perform the method of previously rejected claims 2, 26 and are therefore rejected using the same art and rationale.

5. Claims 10-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Foster in view of Balto (Balto, David A., "Creating a Payment System Network: The Tie That Binds or an Honorable Peace?", The Business Lawyer. Chicago: May 2000. Vol. 55, Iss. 3; pg. 1391, 18 pgs.).

Re claims 10,11: Foster does not disclose that the transaction is "on-us" and that credit card association fees are passed on to the second party. Balto however teaches that VISA offers to waive interchange fees for merchants.-see p. 8 para. 7; also see pp.2-3. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Foster to include credit card companies such as VISA waiving interchange fees charged to merchants as taught by Balto in order to attract merchants and encourage merchants to adopt its standards for Internet transactions.

Re claim 12: Foster discloses waiting to ensure funds are available to the third party prior to releasing any funds to the second party; -see cols. 3; 7;8.

6. Claims 19-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Foster in view of Bowen (Bowen, Cathy. "Behind the Spree in Payments for C2C". Credit Card Management; Apr 2000; 13, 1; pg. 28.

Re claims 19-22: Foster does not specifically disclose wherein the financial services includes insurance coverage on purchased items and escrow service. Bowen however, teaches insurance coverage see p. 34, col. 3, para. 2 and escrow service p. 30-32. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Foster to specifically include escrow service and insurance coverage on purchased items as taught by Bowen in order to provide buyers and sellers with a fair degree of security in preventing fraudulent transactions and reimbursement to unsatisfied buyers.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

US Patent No. 6,629,081 (Cornelius et al.)-cited for its reference to account settlement and financing in an e-commerce environment.
